Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I enjoyed your book, "Photographic whitewash," and it brought up a few questions.

This is a run down of what my grandfather said about A.J. Milteer - His father worked on a farm and made money anyway he could. He wore patches on his clothes, and his cap, and sold wine and vegetables. He also owned a great deal of land. When A.J. Milteer's father died, A.J. got all the land and $80,000 in cash found in the house. During the time before his fathers death A.J. worked in Washington at a cafe. A.J. came home to Quitman 10-15 years ago (my grandfather can not say positively when) with $100,000. Many people believe he worked for either the U.S. gov't or the Soviet gov't as a spy. He did belong to an organization against other races like blacks. A.J., like his father, would do anything for money.

When A.J. was young he did shoot someone with a .22 rifle.

A.J. died a few weeks ago and his land and apartments are being sold by Marion Maxwell of Quitman, the undertaker.

The ex-intelligence officer was head a group in the Panama Canal zone in '63-'65. His mission was to stop the crisis between U.S. and Panamain students concerning the flag ordeal, secretly. He only told me about some of the technics of the job and how they operated. He knew nothing about the Cuban operations.

Mr. Weisberg, I have a question for you. Concerning the conspiracy ideal, do you personally believe Oswald was involved in the plot anyway what so ever.

Best regards,
Ed Johnson
